

ABOUT LOS CABOS

Located at the tip of the Baja Peninsula, Los Cabos is made up of two cities, San Jose del Cabo and Cabo San Lucas, that are joined by a 20-mile corridor. FISHING IN LOS CABOS

Los Cabos, known as the Marlin Capital of the world, is the perfect embodiment of a fisherman's Eden. What used to be a remote coastal village, an aquatic gem at the end of a long desert highway, is now an easily accessible fishing destination open to anyone wishing to get a taste of world-class angling.

Deep sea fishing

A short run – anywhere from five to 40 miles offshore – off of Land's End puts anglers right in the pelagic grounds at local hot spots, such as the Gordo Banks, the Cabrillo Seamount, Golden Gate Banks, Spot 45 and 95 Spot. Billfish are the main draw in Los Cabos, as three separate species of marlin can easily be found in these waters – blue, black and striped. Anglers can score billfish weighing anywhere from 100 to more than 1,000 pounds, with "stripers" being the most popular and prevalent of the three.

Two other billfish species are also readily available: sailfish – targeted by fly-fishing anglers looking for a thrill – and broadbill swordfish – targeted with deep drop-dead baits. Local tuna species include yellowfin tuna, which can exceed the 300-pound mark.

Additional fish that can be caught include lightning-quick wahoo, who usually a hit a speed at over a 10-knot pace, and the common mahi-mahi, also known as dolphinfish, which can be found on throughout the region.

Along the coast

Inshore fishing entails patrolling the rocky shoreline, usually on a troll, up to the lighthouse and back to entice roosterfish; snapper; rainbow runners; yellowtail and grouper to come up and hit seductively moving lures. The beaches right off El Arco and Pueblo Bonito hotel hold jacks, rainbow runners, roosterfish and bonito. The East Cape's shoreline is a hot spot for 50-pound roosterfish, houndfish; snapper and even mahi-mahi.

When to go

Fall and winter are excellent times for all-around fishing action in Los Cabos. Monstrous sword billed specimens of black and blue marlin run July through October, with average catches of six to 12 marlin a day during peak season. July through November, dorado (also known as mahi-mahi and dolphinfish) can be readily caught. Yellowfin tuna hit hard September through January, while wahoo and sailfish round out the mix of offerings, with the warm waters of the late summer and early fall providing the best results. Bottom-fishing for jacks, grouper, roosterfish and snapper can take place all year; and hammerheads, threshers and makos can be found in the winter and spring.

FISHING TOURNAMENTS IN LOS CABOS

Los Cabos hosts many fishing tournaments that pit the skill and knowledge of captains and anglers from around the globe. Six main tournaments hit the Los Cabos shores each and every year: Stars & Stripes Tournament in June, Los Cabos Billfish Tournament in October, Cabo Tuna Jackpot in November, free angler entry Los Cabos Big Game Charter Boat Classic in November and the three local Bisbee's circuit tournaments – the Bisbee's East Cape in August, Los Cabos Offshore and the Bisbee's Black & Blue in October. Bisbee's marling fishing tournaments have the largest exchange in the world, with prizes up to $4.7 million in past occasions.

Interesting Fact:

The productive waters right around Los Cabos have helped sport fishing enthusiasts earn dozens of world fishing records, including catches in the all-tackle, line-class and fly-fishing categories. Cabo San Lucas alone lays claim to the world records for the largest yellow fish tuna (2012), wahoo (2005) and houndfish (1993).
